What got you all enthused about
e-reader devices?

What was it about the Rodney District that made you think e-book readers would be a viable option
in the libraries?

What were other libraries doing?

What did you think were the important criteria for e-readers that may be used by public libraries?

Questions for the audience

Kris – it's your turn.

Give us a brief overview
of the investigation.

Were people interested in the e-readers?

What did they see themselves
using the e-reader for?

Did they like using the
e-reader devices?

Do you think that access to online content will be maximised through these devices?

What's the bottom line?
Will the library be implementing these e-reader devices?

What do you think are the areas that need to be investigated?

Do you have any questions for us?
