

The Art of Communication

Communication is the real work of leadership. It's amazing how intelligent, highly educated adults, who speak the same language, can sit in a meeting, and then leave the room under the false impression that they are on the same page. Great leaders and managers have the skills to distil a message so it's understandable and inspires action. This session focuses on how to have an effective respectful workplace conversation about anything in just a few minutes.