

SNOMED CT

ACC's use of SNOMED CT is initially driven by the need to get relevant information about injuries. SNOMED is not just a new clinical classification system, but potentially a tool to organise information and provide insights to help with diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation. ACC's experience so far has been to translate SNOMED back into Read, which has revealed both opportunities and underlying challenges with clinical information use and exchange.

We'll have a look at some of these, thinking about how these affect practice staff and workloads, and discuss what's important in planning for changes.
