The RTIRN invites you to its workshop:

Road Safety Interventions

On September 30\textsuperscript{th} and October 1\textsuperscript{st}

The RTIRN is organizing a two day workshop for the Asia Pacific region on strategies and programs for the prevention of road traffic injuries and related disability.

Conference Objectives

• To identify, through the best evidence available, the best practices and interventions to prevent the high burden that RTIs impose on low and middle income countries in the region.

• To highlight the importance of disability prevention by including experts from the area in the scientific program and inviting people working in the sector to attend this workshop.

• To contribute to the U.N. Global Decade of Action’s objective of “stabilising then reducing the forecasted level of global road fatalities, by increasing activities conducted at regional and global levels”.

Workshop will be held on the Whare Waka in the city of Wellington, New Zealand as a satellite meeting to the Safety 2012 World Conference to be held in Wellington, October 1-4, 2012 (http://www.conference.co.nz/worldsafety2012).
