

SOS Hydration is presenting 'the world of sports beverage and innovation' - from a start up's perspective. Tom Mayo will look at the history and current developments of sports drinks in the market place and takes up the discussions including the world of government legislation, addressing the false truth of social media health gurus, the aggressive sugar debate and the pathway to get real products into the market place.