

Dr Diana Strange Khursandi is a retired anaesthetist.

She is a co-founder, with Dr Genevieve Goulding, of the Welfare of Anaesthetists' Special Interest Group.

Her roles in ANZCA have been: Councillor, Regional Committee member, Chair of the Education and Training Committee, and Supervisor of Training.

She is currently Deputy Director of Clinical Training at Caboolture Hospital. This role gives her an opportunity to exercise her longstanding interest in education, doctors' health, and the issues facing international medical graduates.

She is a medical advisor to the Queensland Health initiative PESCI (pre-employment structured clinical interview), and a facilitator on the Professional Development for Registrars' Program.

Her current interests include supervisor upskilling and training, the impact of impairment on performance in doctors, and workplace based assessments.
